1. In order to obtain some idea of the relationship existing between the export and import price levels in trade with various countries, the Danish Office of Statistics has calculated the purchasing value of a kilo of Danish butter as measured in the important commodities received from the respective countries.
2. The particulars of this survey have not been made known, but it is reported that results indicate that purchasing power is lowest in terms of British goods. This is true, for example, of such commodities as iron, steel and cloth.
3. Although a study of this kind must be accepted with reservations, since the quality of the goods involved could not be taken into account, the main trend seems to be clearly indicated; that is, Danish exports buy less in Britain than in many continental countries.
